Prince of Denmarke.

This man shall set me packing,
Ile lugge the guts into the neighbour roome;
Mother good night indeed, this Counsayler
Is now most still, most secret, and most graue,
Who was in life a most foolish prating knaue.
Come sir, to draw toward an end with you.
Good night mother.

Exit.

Eenter King, and Queene, with Refencraus and Guyldensterne.

King. There's matter in these sighes, these prosound heaves, You must translate, its sit we understand them, Where is your sonne?

Ger. Bestow this place on vs a little while.

Ah mine owne Lord, what have I scene to night?

King. What Gertrard, how dooes Hamlet?

Ger. Mad as the sea and wind when both contend Which is the mightier, in his lawlesse fit, Behind the Arras hearing something stirre, Whyps out his Rapier, cryes a Rat, a Rat, And in this brainish apprehension kills

The vnseene good old man.

King. O heavy deede!

It had beene so with vs had wee been there,
His libertie is full of threates to all,
To you your selfe, to vs, to every one,
Alas, how shall this bloody deede be answer'd?

It will be layd to vs, whose providence
Should have kept short, restraind, and out of haunt
This mad young man; but so much was our love,
We would not understand what was most fit,
But like the owner of a foule disease
To keepe it from divulging, let it seede
Euen on the pith of life: where is he gone?

Ger. To draw apart the body he hath kild, Ore whom, his very madnes like fome ore Among a minerall of mettals base, Showes it selfe pure, a weepes for what is done.

K

King. O Gertrard, come away,
